I was born in Cecil county in June, 1877, Messrs. Smith. Burris, Thomas Gardiner,

READY TO DESTROY COUNTERFEIT MONEY

in the Past Two Years.

Work to Be Done Under Expert Supervision.

More Than a Billion Dollars in Bogm Lucre to Be Melted and Burned.

Counterfeit coin and bogus notes accumulate in the Secret Service store rooms much more rapidly than the public im-

There are now stored in a room adjoining the private office of John E. Wilkle, Chief of the Secret Service Division of the United States Treasury, paper and coin represent-ing $1,221,306,988.75. This spoil is boxed and almost ready for total destruction.

Of this amount $117,243.60 represents United States notes, Treasury notes, silver certificates, bank notes, and fractional currency; $16,021.71 is in gold, silver, nickel, and copper coin. The balance of this gigantic sum, according to Mr. Wilkthis gigantic sum, according to air. Whate's report, is in imitations of United States obligations and securities, including fac-similies of Confederate States notes, Tennessee State warrants, Missouri defence bonds, State bank notes, and "flash" notes.

This represents a two years' donation of counterfeits to a gullible public. At the time of capturing these various representatives of Uncle Sam's lucre, along with the plates, dies, molds, and various tools for their manufacture, a minute list is taken in the Secret Service Office, and then each outfit is separately boxed and labeled. These boxes are put in a room adjoining the office of the chief, and guard-ed for two years. At the end of that time, a committee is appointed to take an inven-tory preparatory to the total destruction of Holding a Post-Mortem.

Such a committee is now at work. It is tiresome task, owing to the miscellaneous lot of stuff used by the counterneous for or stan used by the counterfeiters, consisting of the different sorts of paper used for the printing; fine-cut silk thread to perfect a representation of a recent silver certificate; books of gold leaf photographic outfits; boxes of type for numbering notes; ladles, crucibies, engravers tools, printers varnish, paint and oils in cans; printers ink, rollers, and a large collection of tools and materials consisting of files, wrenches, tongs, pinchers, screwdrivers, reeding tools, printers plates, knives, hand bellows, bar the and lead; also, chemicals of all kind used in plating and photographing.

The work of the committee is being done in the old "Rogues Gallery" once the delight of a morbid public, where various photographs of famous counterfeiters—many women being in the collection—adorned the walls, and cases of tools and packages of green goods filed glass cases, while a grewsome collection of dirks, pistols shoguns, etc., told the tale of selfpreservation and the value a rogue places feiters, consisting of the different sorts of eservation and the value a rogue places

Uncle Sam grew Jealous of the public example set his already too precoclous children, or too economical, and closed it. children, or too economical, and closed re-Save for a few-not pretty-portraits that adorn the walls of the committee room, all the treasures went the way of the present collection. The "Rogues' Gallery" is no more, but that it lives in the hearts of the public is evidenced by the cager inquiry made every day.

How It Is Disposed Of. Having convicted 269 of these counterfeiters through the medium of the Secret Service Division (while a few hundred more are yet on the anxious seat), the Government proceeds to dispose of the records of their too diligent handwork.

In former years all of the metals in coins, dies, medds, plates, and tools were sent to the navy yard, each metal melted sent to the navy yard, each metal melter separately and run into bars. On its jour-ney there and during the melting process the committee remained by the collection. The cost to the Treasury Department was about $150. This included a donation of the metals to the navy yard when run into bars. This figure was thought too high, and a contract has been made this year with Schneider's foundry, and to this place the committee will accompany it. It is thought that it will be a small saving to the department.

The bond paper, onion paper, stamped envelopes, photographs, and all fibrons matter are consigned to that part of the Treasury so well known to tourists—that sub-cellar room hid away from the face. of the earth, where mutilated paper mon-ey, etc. is macerated. After that it is found made into curious articles, animal busts, etc. at the stands of souvenir merchants all over the country. During the process of maceration, as during that of melting the metal, it never leaves the sight of the committee from the time it leaves the room in which it is stored until it runs liquid from the great macerating machine. Mr. Wilkie, Chief of the Secret Service Department, gives some startling revela-tions of the gullibility of the average American. He frankly says it is pretty much their own fault when taken in by green goods men, as most of the "flyers" and "flash notes" are exceedingly poor imitations of the real thing. Upon his desk were two $10 "flash notes" with the crudest work imaginable upon them. Really about the only thing to recommend them was a general bilious greer color. He also showed a pretty fair imitation of a fifty-cent piece; its ring was clear and nearly true; it bore the mark of the keen insight, and a few scratches show-ed a coating of silver over copper. He says if, when receiving money, the public would give more than a casual glance to the general appearance of a silver certificate or other tender, and not simply the denomina-tion, less fraud would be attempted and 250.000. Will Contest Involving $50,000.

Elikton, Md., March 20.—At the March erm of the circulation for Cecil county, reginning today, the most important case to be tried is that contesting the will of Mrs. Caroline Naudain, of Perryville, in which the Jury disagreed at the last term use of coms for such purpose. An opinion from the law officer of the department, holding that a coin bearing one of the 'stickers' is defaced within the meaning of the statutes, has resulted in a partial suppression of the nuisance through the agents of the division." Counterfeiting Made Easy. "How do you account for the great number of counterfeiters, Mr. Wilkie?"

"Well, the simplification of modern processes of photo-engraving has tempted novices to enter the field in competition for criminal honors with the older members of the craft, and has resulted in the floating of an unusually large number of counterof an unusually large number of counterfelts, nineteen new ones and one reissue of an old one having made their appearance during the year. Of these, but five are in any sense dangerous, the others being so quickly detected through their crudity of execution as to discourage the makers.

"Of the five dangerous notes, three were the work of Frank Holston, an illinois criminal, who was arrested and his entire."

TELEGRAPH POLE TAX.

Payment in Laurel, Md. Laurel, Md., March 20.—The Western Union Telegraph Company has been granted a preliminary injunction by Judge Mor ris in the United States Court restra ning pany for non-payment of a pole tax. The question as to the legality of the tax or the poles was set down for argument March 27. Pending the hearing the com-pany gave an injunction bond of $500. By ordnances passed May 11, 1895, and teen days from that date the poles in Lau-rel would be cut down.

The telegraph company claims that the tax is unreasonable, extortionate, and op-pressive, and that the ordinances imposing it are null and void. It is also an a tempt, the company contends, to levy a tax on the right of the company to operate its line and conduct business under powers granted by Congress. The town authori-ties, it is alleged, have acted in the matter ties, it is alleged, have acted in the matter contrary to the Constitution of the United States and the constitution of Airyland. These allegations are made in the petition filed in court by W. Irvine Cross, attorney for the company. The petition states that on June 8, 1867, the company filed its written acceptance of the restrictions and obligations required by the act of July 24, 1866, to secure to the Covernment the use of telegraph lines for postal, military, and other purposes. It also states that the line through Laurel is part of a direct line between Washington and Baltimore, Philadelphia, New York, and Boston, over which large and important foreign and interstate business is done and which is constantly used by the Government. The poles in Laurel, the company claims, are necessary to perform its duty

MOONSHINER KING DEAD. The Noted Carl Nowlin Drowned While Asleep.

Danville, Va., March 20.-Information has just reached here of the death under peculiar circumstances of Carl Nowlin a noted "moonshiner" of the famous Shooting Creek section in the mountains of Franklin county. Shooting Creek runs between two thickly wooded mountain spurs, and this valley has long been the home of the moonshiners, of whom Carl Nowlin was the king. He has never made any secret of the fact that he was the proprietor of several "blind tigers" hid in the mountain fastnesses along Shooting Creek and its tributaries, but has always said to the revenue officials: "You may have them when you can find them." Heavy rain storms of the past week have flooded all the mountain streams and on one of which Nowlin tain streams, and on one of which Nowlin was attending to one of his illicit distil-leries there was on Wednesday a sudden and terrific waterspout. It is supposed that when the floods came so suddenly Nowlin was asleep, or maybe he thought that it "was not much of a shower anyhaw." At any rate the narrow mountain gorge was quickly converted into a raging torrent of destruction and the king of the moonshin-ers and his entire establishment were swept away. The next day Nowlin's body was found in Shooting Creek, several miles below where his "blind tiger" had been located, and not a shred of his distillery was to be found anywhere. From all accounts it was one of the most destructive as well as one of the most sud-den storms that ever struck the gorges of the famous Shooting Creek region.

Announcement Causes Joy Among Georgetown Students.

There is a great deal of joy among the students of Georgetown over the announcement that Fred Hafford, the clever little third-baseman of the nine, will be allowed to come out and try for the team. Father Whitney, the rector, declared him off probation yesterday. The news spread around the college like good news always does, and the popular "Bonny" was given what fairly amounted to an ovation. Of the other two Hindle seems to have a shade the better of the argument. He is very slow and deliberate, however, and takes too long to throw to second. There is not a more willing man on the field than Hindle. He takes every criticism in good part and He takes every criticism in good part and therefore it is but right to conclude that in a short time he will be up to the standard.
